Supplement: Politically exposed persons

We are required to keep a record of politically exposed persons in accordance with the Anti-Money Laundering Act.

1. Any individuals who are or were entrusted with prominent public functions in the executive, legislative, military or judicial branches of the Swiss federal government; and any members of the board of directors of Swiss state-owned enterprises of national importance, or senior executives thereof (domestic politically exposed persons). Specifically, any members of the Federal, National or States' Councils; heads or directors-general of federal government departments; public prosecutors of the federal government; federal judges, high-ranking officers in the armed forces, or presidents or secretaries-general of national political parties. The definition also applies to any members of the board of directors of state-owned enterprises of national importance, or senior executives thereof, including, but not limited to Swiss Post, Swisscom, SBB, SUVA, Arma-Suisse or RUAG.
2. Any individuals who are or were senior officials in international organisations or international sports associations or federations; in particular, secretaries-general, directors, deputy directors, members of the governing bodies or persons in similar functions (politically exposed persons in international organisations). International organisations are defined as subjects of international law established by treaty between multiple states. These include, in particular, the UN and its agencies (UNICEF, UNESCO etc), the WTO, NATO, the OECD and the IMF. International sports associations or federations include the International Olympic Committee (IOC) and any non-governmental organisation recognised by the IOC governing one or more official sports worldwide, such as FIFA or the UCI. The amended Act does not apply to other international organisations, in particular, NGOs.

² Immediate family members or close associates² of politically exposed persons are defined as individuals who for family, personal or business reasons are publicly known to maintain a close relationship with persons defined under (1) above.
