NEW YORK, May 3, 2004 -- Swiss Re today issued the following statement in connection with the jury verdict in the U.S. District Court, Southern District of New York, in the case of SR International Business Insurance Company Ltd. v. World Trade Center Properties, LLC, et al.

"Swiss Re is grateful for the jury's full consideration and attention throughout this trial. We are pleased that the jury has confirmed the contractual basis of our coverage," said Jacques E. Dubois, Chairman, Swiss Re America Holding Corp. "According to two prior court decisions in this litigation, today's finding means that Swiss Re's payout obligation is no more than our 25 percent share of the $3.5 billion loss limit property policy. We have always been convinced that the maximum payout under a loss limit property policy could never exceed the sum insured, in this case $3.5 billion.

"Swiss Re played a leading role in this litigation," added Dubois. "We had an important obligation to resist the insureds' claim that they were entitled to twice the maximum payout of the policy. We believe that paying anything more than the full amount of the sum insured is both outside the terms of the coverage and wrong."

Cautionary note on forward-looking statements

Certain statements contained herein are forward-looking. These statements provide current expectations of future events based on certain assumptions and include any statement that does not directly relate to a historical fact or current fact. Forward-looking statements typically are identified by words or phrases such as "anticipate," "assume," "believe," "continue", "estimate", "expect", "foresee", "intend," "may increase" and "may fluctuate" and similar expressions or by future or conditional verbs such as "will," "should," "would" and "could." These forward-looking statements involve known and unknown risks, uncertainties and other factors, which may cause our actual results, performance, achievements or prospects to be materially different from any future results, performance, achievements or prospects expressed or implied by such statements. Such factors include, among others:

- cyclical nature of the reinsurance industry;
- changes in general economic conditions, particularly in our core markets;
- uncertainties in estimating reserves;
- risks and uncertainties relating to our estimates of the losses arising from the 11 September 2001 terrorist attack in the United States;
- the performance of financial markets;
- expected changes in our investment results as a result of the changed composition of our investment assets or changes in our investment policy;
- the frequency, severity and development of insured claim events;
- acts of terrorism and acts of war;
- changes in rating agency policies or practices;
- mortality and morbidity experience;
- policy renewal and lapse rates;
- the change in or loss of one or more of the financial or claims-paying ratings of one or more of our subsidiaries;
- changes in levels of interest rates;
- political risks in the countries in which we operate or in which we insure risks;
- extraordinary events affecting our clients, such as bankruptcies and liquidations;
- risks associated with implementing our business strategies;
- changes in currency exchange rates;
- changes in laws and regulations, including changes in accounting standards and taxation requirements; and
- changes in competitive pressures.

These factors are not exhaustive. We operate in a continually changing environment and new risks emerge continually. Readers are cautioned not to place undue reliance on forward-looking statements. We undertake no obligation to publicly revise or update any forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise.
